Hi,

I was looking for something new and fun to do with my son so we could bond, and I came across stamp collecting. He was super excited about the idea because thanks to Pokemon cards, he already has a love for collecting and we thought it would be a great low-key activity for us to do together! Being new to the hobby, we've been doing some research together and we thought your page (This one: <https://sanjoseesc.com/links/>) had some great information that gave us a lot of information about stamp collecting. Thanks!

My son, Xavier's teachers at school have really been driving home the point of being a "good digital citizen" so he really wanted to send you a quick thank you as well as pass on an article he found: <http://www.mycoupons.com/store/stamp-collecting-and-philately-for-kids-and-adults-alike/>

I was wondering if you could include it on your page. He's really shy (as many middle schoolers are), but us collecting these stamps together and talking to people about it has been great for his confidence and it's the first time he's really gone out of his way to do research like this, so I'd like to show him that hard work pays off!

Thanks again,
Hannah (and Xavier)
